1,000,000 Indians Greet Him

Rose Petals Rain On Prince Philip

BOMBAY, Indian (Reuters) — Indian schoolgirls pelted Prince Philip with rose petals and jasmine buds Thursday as he drove 40 miles through the streets of the city to visit two of India's great modern showpieces.

Crowds estimated at more than 1,000,000 people lined the streets.

Philip's first visit was to the Indian atomic energy establishment at nearby Trombay, where he saw the Indian-built reactor which has been in operation for 2½ years.

He also saw a new reactor being built with Canadian help under the Colombo Plan. He was shown around by D. J. Wallace of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., who with 28 other Canadian engineers is helping to build the reactor.

Later he drove to the world's biggest dairy farm at Aarey, where he had lunch.

In the afternoon he piloted a Heron aircraft to Aurangabad, 200 miles east of here, where he saw Buddhist carvings in the caves at Ajanta and Ellora.

Canadian Oil Not a Threat

NEW YORK (AP)—Gordon Simpson, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said Wednesday that imports of oil should be held to 5 or 6 per cent of U.S total oil requirements compared with the 1958 rate of 20 per cent.

However, Simpson indicated that he does not consider Canadian imports a threat.

"From a defence standpoint, Canadian oil is just as available as oil in the U.S.," he said.

Mass-Produced Thor Fires Fast

Four Men and Missile

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. is mass-producing one of its most reliable missiles in a form so simple that crews can fire them in volleys on 15-minute notice—even from mobile bases.

The missile is the 1,500-mile Thor, a combat-ready weapon that also is a workhorse in space research.

It can carry a nuclear warhead known as the County-Buster and it is stockpiled at bases in the U.S. and abroad.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

But because of its limited range, the future of the Thor is uncertain.

Reporters Wednesday saw a demonstration at Sacramento that a Thor can be ready to be launched 15 minutes after the fire order.

No permanent emplacements are necessary—only a metal ring on the ground for the missile's tail to rest on while it is being fueled. The missile and its erecting mechanism, its control rooms and electrical generators are all on wheels. Each missile requires only four men to fuel and fire it.

tial successes out of 31 firings mark the Thor's tests.

The missile is ready for use right now, air force Brig.-Gen. Donald Coupland told reporters, but that doesn't mean it's operational. There are two other factors.

CREWS TRAINING

First, enough crews must be trained to use them. American and British crews are undergoing training now.

Second, they must have a target within their reach. And there are no potential targets within reach of Thor bases in the United States. Thor bases in Britain, have not been announced as operational.
